

Milestone 4:

I think for this project I did a much better job of starting from a very do-able foundation and building up. I think this gave me a more functional application in the end because I didn't try to throw everything I wanted to do in at once. I think that I could have done more to style the application because I think in creativity it was lacking. I think some more styling to make the interface more interesting would have helped and then if I had met my stretch goal of having the user make their own sub categories that would have helped. I think adding the graphing page really helped to make the app more interesting and functional. I think putting aside more time at the end for polishing and styling will help a project like this in the future.